

Hunting for gold at South Crofty

Exploration has proved there is gold at South Crofty mine. So, to pinpoint exactly where to mine for it, a specialist MSc Mining Geology student has been taken on. Matthew Cross is carrying out studies to get a greater understanding of gold mineralisation – not just at the mine in Pool but at other Cornish sites. Matthew says: “We know there is gold here, now it’s about trying to establish exactly where the largest and most profitable deposits are.”
